NEWS of the WEEK

Wern Spain

London, Eng.—The death of a British subject at the hands of Spanish rebels has created a tense situation between the nations. Germany has already threatened the Spanish Government that death or injury to natives of the Reich resident in Spain.

Meets Pulpit Moratorium

New York City.—In the Trinity Book, the Rev. Dr. Frederic S. King, rector of Trinity Church, best parish in the world, writes: "I seriously believe the Christian Church would once again bring salvation to the world, and to save its own soul, if it had the wisdom and courage to declare a moratorium on preaching for one or two years."

WPA Workers

Washington, D. C.—At a cost of $2,069, WPA workers assigned to the Treasury Department have earned $16,494.31 in additional taxes and to the Government in income, and otherwise might have been paid. The Works Progress Administration has just announced that the 3,751,000 workers on Federal relief jobs in March received average wage of $45.91 a month. The Federal Home Loan Bank announced that June building was per cent higher than May, 250 per cent better than June, 1935, and greater than any other month in the Fall peak of $329.

Under Dictator

Athens.—Alarmed by a "threat of communism" in Greece, General Metaxas, the Premier, laid the before King George II and urged from the conference a Dictator. He dissolved Parliament, and public utilities over to the army and declared martial law throughout the kingdom.

Country's Worst Drought

Washington, D. C.—A survey of recent drought by the Weather Bureau's climate and crop division shows it "the worst in the climatic history of the country." It is to farmers mounted at the rate of $25,000,000 a day, affecting counties in 20 states. WPA announced 40,000 farmers in temporary relief jobs and 53,000 more to be placed.

Pretzels by Machine

Detroit, Mich.—After defying the machine age for a century or so, pretzel, always "bent" by hand, about to be mechanized. Horace Farmer, a local engineer, has perfected a pretzel bender with such deft that the result is indistinguishable from the handmade article. A Baltimore baker has ordered sufficient equipment to turn out 900 pretzels a minute.

Decorated Scores

London, Eng.—On his return from a cruise in the Adriatic, King Edward VIII will take up his official residence at Buckingham Palace, making York House which he has occupied for 21 years. The Palace will be redecorated by Lady Mendl, former Elsie de Wolfe of New York, now the wife of the press at the British Embassy in London.

Host to Royalty

Berlin, Germany.—Arch-foe of the Nazis, Adolf Hitler, German dictator, nevertheless entertained the principal royal visitor to the Olympic games. He did, however, meet Col. Charles A. Bergh, who has been making a tour of German airplane fields, factories, and certain observers have noted the fact that the Führer's interest over the electrocution of Hauptmann for the murder of the Lindbergh baby.

HUNT FOR MRS. STAPLES AT GILEAD GIVEN UP

The search for Mrs. Sadie Staples, wife of Capt. John W. Staples of the Auburn police, was given up last week. Mrs. Staples was reported missing Tuesday afternoon, July 28, from a camp at Gilead village where she and Mr. Staples had arrived the day before for an outing. The hunt started at once, covering a large section of the woods and several miles of the Androscoggin River without a trace of the missing woman being discovered.

BROWN FAMILY REUNION HELD SUNDAY, AUGUST 2

Anniversaries or reunions may very well be termed pleasant milestones on the pathway of life; short hours when we meet together, renew the bonds of family love that united us so closely in the past—to talk over the present days' manifest topics and problems, and make happy plans for such future occasions. We all come from such reunions rejuvenated, strengthened and with hope predominant in our hearts.

On Sunday, Aug. 2, at the spacious home of the late J. A. Brown at Northwest Bethel, his son, Hon. Frank A. Brown, and Mrs. Brown entertained their children, grandchildren, and a great grandchild in honor of their 45th wedding anniversary.

At an early hour the cars rolled into the driveway and soon the house and grounds resounded with the happy childish prattle of 14 little folks who had such a wonderful time exploring. The Old Barn was such a great big play house for the 10 young grandsons and four granddaughters; while all enjoyed the mountain scenery. Due to atmospheric conditions the mountains were wrapped in a soft bluish-gray misty haze, and were not always seen.

At noon under the directions of our baker, Adelmar, and others, a bountiful lunch was spread on tables on the wide porch. Many were the old-time memories renewed and reviewed. While very quiet as a "lad," Professor H. C. Brown seemed to be the ringleader in all sports and merrymaking.

After the dinner the young folks had games and stunts while the older folks talked and reminisced. The hours passed all too soon and we heard: "Well tomorrow's Monday. So many things to do tomorrow. Glad of this joyous reunion. The children all look forward to the next with Father and Mother at the Old Homestead."

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur V. Chapman and twin sons, Philip and Frank, of Mechanic Falls; Herbert Barker of Hebron; Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Chapman Jr. and daughter Jean of South Paris; Mr. and Mrs. Adelmar R. Brown and daughter Adele of Portland; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Brown and children, Miss Margaret and Master Malcolm, of Norway; Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Brown and children, James and Ann, of Rumford; Mr. and Mrs. Philip Brown and sons, Robert and William, of Berlin, N. H.; Mr. and Mrs. Byron W. Abbott and children, Carolyn and Charles, of South Portland; Mr. and Mrs. G. Warren Brown and son Victor of Gilead; Miss Virginia Brown of Lynn, Mass., who has recently graduated from the Lynn Hospital; and the host and hostess, Hon. and Mrs. Frank A. Brown. Unfortunately Walter Chapman was unable to attend.

CITIZEN READERS HAVE CHANCE TO VOTE IN PRESIDENTIAL POLL

Which of the presidential candidates in the national election this fall is going to carry Maine, Oxford County, and Bethel?

Which of the candidates will get the highly important small-town and rural vote? Which candidate will get those votes in the majority of states throughout the nation?

These are questions, the answers to which will no doubt play an important part in the final national returns next November. Upon the choice of the small-town and rural America voters may rest the balance of power to swing the election for the successful candidate.

Reports from throughout the country indicate that voters everywhere are manifesting exceptionally keen interest in the political campaign now well under way. All signs point to a closely contested election.

It is therefore of especial interest at this time that the publishers of weekly newspapers throughout the country have launched a nationwide presidential straw-vote, to learn "which way the wind is blowing" with the small town and rural American voters.

In Nation-Wide Poll
The Citizen has joined in with these weekly newspapers and will conduct the vote in this territory. A straw-vote ballot is published in this issue. It may be voted by any legal voter. You do not have to

HUNT FOR MRS. STAPLES AT GILEAD GIVEN UP

The search for Mrs. Sadie Staples, wife of Capt. John W. Staples of the Auburn police, was given up last week. Mrs. Staples was reported missing Tuesday afternoon, July 28, from a camp at Gilead village where she and Mr. Staples had arrived the day before for an outing. The hunt started at once, covering a large section of the woods and several miles of the Androscoggin River without a trace of the missing woman being discovered.

CITIZEN READERS HAVE CHANCE TO VOTE IN PRESIDENTIAL POLL

Which of the presidential candidates in the national election this fall is going to carry Maine, Oxford County, and Bethel?

Which of the candidates will get the highly important small-town and rural vote? Which candidate will get those votes in the majority of states throughout the nation?

These are questions, the answers to which will no doubt play an important part in the final national returns next November. Upon the choice of the small-town and rural America voters may rest the balance of power to swing the election for the successful candidate.

Reports from throughout the country indicate that voters everywhere are manifesting exceptionally keen interest in the political campaign now well under way. All signs point to a closely contested election.

It is therefore of especial interest at this time that the publishers of weekly newspapers throughout the country have launched a nationwide presidential straw-vote, to learn "which way the wind is blowing" with the small town and rural American voters.

In Nation-Wide Poll
The Citizen has joined in with these weekly newspapers and will conduct the vote in this territory. A straw-vote ballot is published in this issue. It may be voted by any legal voter. You do not have to Miss Beatrice Brooks of Pownal was the guest of Mrs. J. S. Hutchins and Clyde Brooks and family last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Haselton of Calais were guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Haselton, the past week.

Major and Mrs. Frank Packard Coffin and daughter Claire of Fort Niagara, N. Y., are spending a short vacation in town.

Mrs. S. S. Greenleaf and children have returned from Chesterville, where they have been spending a month's vacation.

Miss Helen Anderson is working for Mrs. E. Swain in the roadside stand recently opened at the Swain farm in Skillington.

Miss Beattie Bartlett has been enjoying a two weeks vacation from the Maine Eye and Ear Infirmary at Portland, where she is in training.

Miss Marguerite Fowler and Miss Lulu Fiedler from Yonkers, N. Y., were guests of Miss Alta Smith last week at the home of L. E. Davis.

Lieut. William Bean, U. S. N. retired, Mrs. Bean and C. A. Burdick of Albany, N. Y., are spending several weeks at Harry Jordan's camp at Songo Pond.

Maynard Austin, Carlos Smith and Irving Brown went to Camp William Hinds, the Boy Scout camp at Panther Pond, Raymond, for a two weeks period, Sunday.

Many friends of Miss Margaret Carter of Portland, to hear whose voice is also a great musical treat will be glad to learn that she will spend the week end in Bethel and sing at the morning service in the Congregational Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Maxson, George Taylor of Westbrook, Mass., and Miss Faye Sanborn of Arlington, Mass., were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Sanborn.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Eaman and Hattie Eaman, Clifford Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Schuman and Verna and Howard Schuman of Berlin, and John Eaman of Bethel, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Fuller.

NEWS OF THE WEEK

World's Youngest Industry Booms

Washington, D. C.—The Bureau of Air Commerce reports a 32 per cent gain in passenger travel by air during the first six months of the year and a jump of 78 per cent in freight carried. Passengers numbered 421,587; freight 2,911,776 pounds; miles flown 29,078,403. All companies announce heavy new equipment programs.

Archery Gains Devotees

Battle Creek, Mich.—The 56th National Archery Championship attracted a field of 178 archers. Gilman Keasey, 27 years old, of Corvallis, Ore., scored a record breaking 2,995 points. The women's title went to Mrs. Gladys Hammer, a California school teacher, who scored 1,930 points. Curtis Hill, of Dayton, O., reclining on the ground and holding the bow with his feet, shot an arrow 616 yards, three times the drive of the average golfer.

Cotton Men Optimistic

New Orleans, La.—With the Government holding 6,000,000 bales of cotton a year ago, cotton growers feared a demoralized market in any large liquidation of this stock. It is now estimated that the entire Government holdings will be sold before the new season is under way. With world cotton mills spinning 5 per cent greater weight and a more active demand, experts see a surplus of only 2,500,000 bales above normal, not enough to disturb prices.

Lonely Hearts Flood Mails

Oakland, Calif.—Because he used the mails to advertise for a wife, Samuel Frank drew a jail term. He revealed that he received 13,000 replies. School teachers ranked first, nurses second. A girl of 11 applied, enclosing the written consent of her parents.

WEST BETHEL

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Verrill children of South Paris were guests at H. B. Lowell's Sunday. Glenyce and Elwin Swan of Bethel are spending the week with Mr. and Mrs. Allen Walker.

Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Proctor of Brockton, Mass., are spending a few days with their niece, Mrs. L. Wood Lowell, and also their nephew, Kenneth McInnis, and family.

The many friends in this community of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Saunders, also of Mrs. Nettie May and son Gordon, extend their sympathy to them in the loss of their home last Friday night by a fire, which, it is understood, caught the chimney. The building was completely destroyed. Mr. Saunders moved to the Steam Mill village. Mrs. Mason has moved into a building known as the Bell House.

Kenneth Lovejoy was home from Mason over the week end.

Mrs. Clifford Miller and daughter Marilyn of Rumford are spending the week with Miss Kathryn L. ell.

Oren Eames of Portland is the week end with Carlton Sanders and family.

Warren Bean of Auburn is home over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Head are giving congratulations on the birth of a son Aug. 9th.

Mrs. Byron Abbott and daughter Carolyn from South Portland are guests of Mrs. Clara Abbott a days the first of the week.

The sermons of Evangelist Erick H. Bopp, who assisted our local pastor, A. J. Verrill, at the Saturday evening and special Monday evening meeting of this week, were greatly appreciated by a good number; also the vocal selections. Mrs. Bopp and the outdoor broadcast, through amplifiers, of far hymns were much enjoyed. Evangelist Bopp, who is laboring under the auspices of the Evangelistic association of New England, presented himself a very forceful and convincing speaker. He expressed himself as well pleased at the number of young people in attendance at these services, a noticeable extension to what he generally found on his travels among the churches.

Bopp also remarked on the good attendance being greater than he found in much larger towns and churches. The assistance of James MacKillop, pastor of the Bryant Pond Baptist Church, in leading the singing at the Sunday evening service was also much appreciated.

EAST BETHEL

Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Boudreau two daughters of Bangor have guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reed the past week.

Rev. MacKillop of Bryant Pond preached in the church here at Sunday. There was a good attendance in spite of the short service. Services will be held at the church again soon.

Miss Althea Enman of Bangor was last weeks guest of her mother and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. David man.

Mr. and Mrs. Haakon Olson North Newry were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dana Harrington Saturday night.

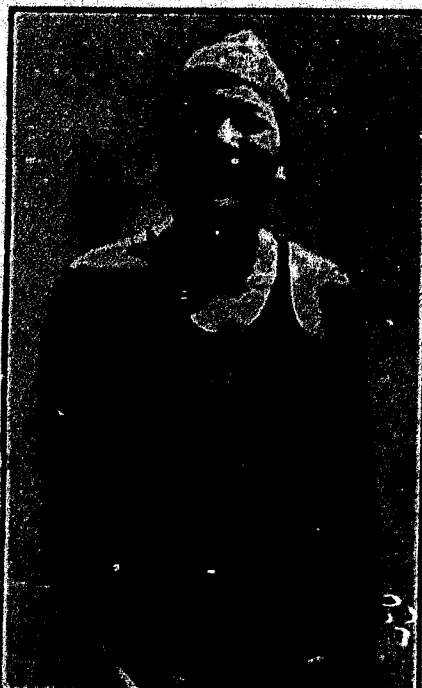

The farm tour began at G. K. Hastings farm Friday morning. Quite a number of people watched two sprayers of mixed and applied to the potato field. The new poultry pens of G. K. Hastings were then looked over by lunch time. A picnic lunch was served before moving on to E. Smith's at West Bethel.

Miss Deborah Farwell was a guest of Mrs. Dana Harrington last week of Mrs. Dana Harrington at Bryant Pond.

Clinton Littlefield of Green has been painting the exterior of G. K. Hastings home the past week. G. K. Hastings and Sons and son Kimball have been filling silos.

discovering New Flavors in low-cost meats

PORK. A Shoulder Roast of Pork that rivals the flavor of a melting tenderloin is easily cooked in the Thrift Cooker of a Hotpoint Electric Range. Low, controlled heat does it without watching on your part.

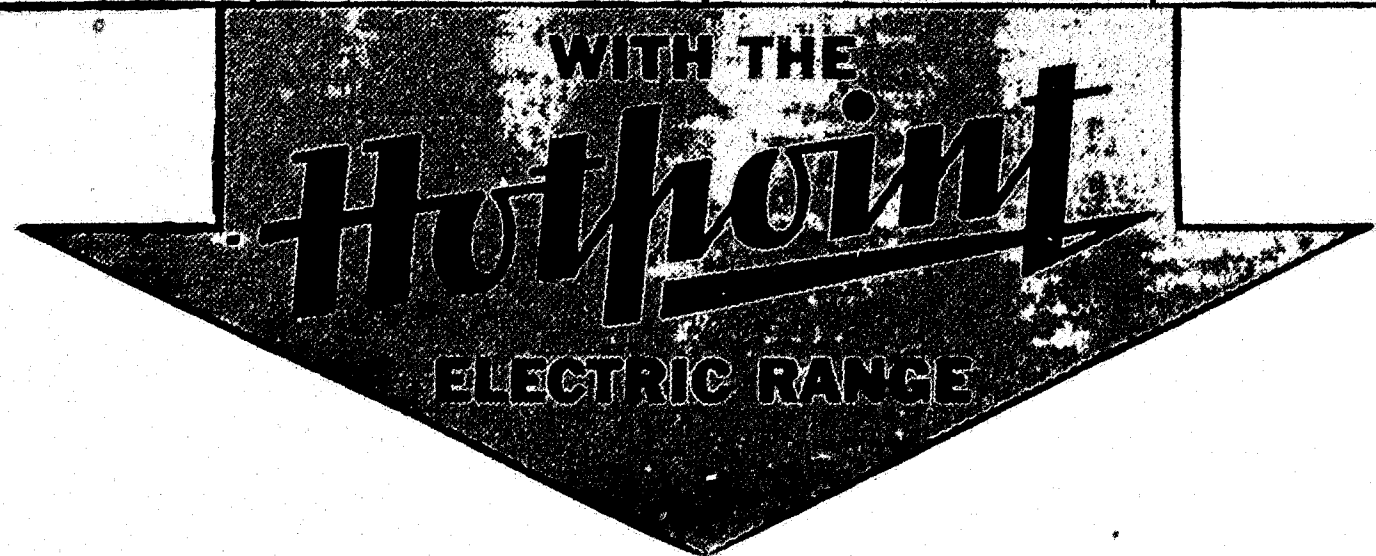

BEEF. Beef Chuck, Steamed Onions, Potatoes, Cottage Pudding—the whole meal is placed in a cold Hotpoint oven, "Chef's Brain" is set for 2 hours at 350°. Go on your way. The meal cooks to perfection itself.

LAMB. Delightful Shepherd's Pie is made by cooking a lamb stew in Hotpoint's Thrift Cooker. Place the finished stew in a casserole, decorate with swirls of mashed potatoes and brown under the broiler.

CHICKEN. In the moist, even heat of Hotpoint's no-draft oven, you can roast a veteran hen to juicy tenderness. There's no need to baste or watch the bird. And electrically roasted chicken is a treat.

● ELECTRIC cooking gives you new economy because of controlled heat. Simply set your temperature control for the desired heat and it is maintained without further attention.

Because of this feature it is possible to buy cheaper cuts of meat and to save considerably on your budget . . . and, at the same time, make your menu just as attractive. Electric or Miracle Cookery technique coaxes new flavor from inexpensive meats—and frees you of pot-watching, too. That's one of the reasons for the great swing to electric cookery.

See the beautiful new Hotpoint Electric Ranges today. Discover how you can save time and money by cooking electrically.

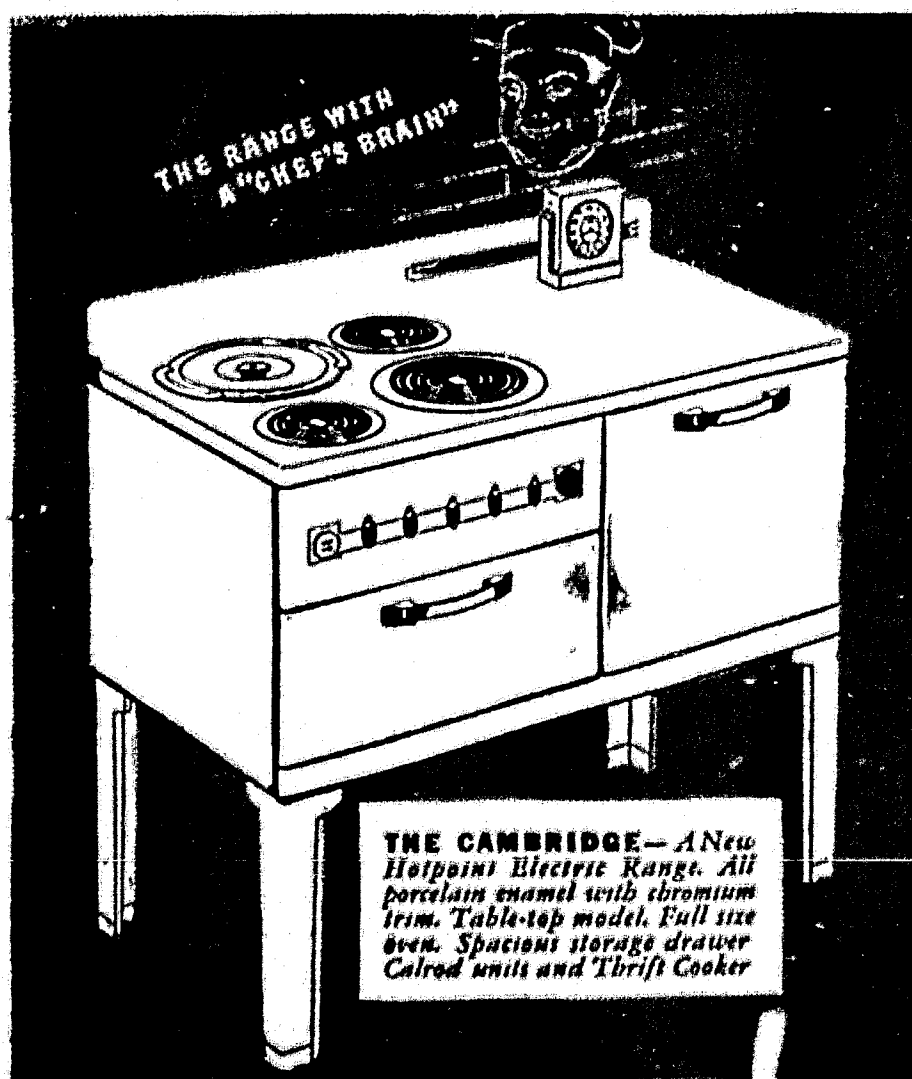

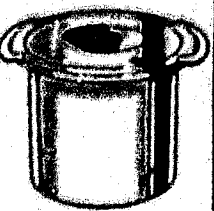

HOTPOINT CALROD

What Maxda means to light, Calrod means to cookery. Calrod is the name given to Hotpoint's hi-speed sealed-in-metal cooking coil which has revolutionized electric cookery. It brings new speed, new cleanliness and new economy to the kitchen.

THRIFT COOKER

Economical. Uses only about as much current as the kitchen light. Cooks an entire meal of meat, vegetables, or bakes small quantities, like a few potatoes, without need for heating up the oven.

So that as it may, the magazine Iron Age has just completed an interesting computation. It found that a worker of 25, earning $1,800 a year, can, under the Federal Act, draw $15 a week unemployment insurance for 10 weeks, and at the age of 65 he will be entitled to a $31.25 per month pension for the rest of his life, or until $2,520 has been refunded to his estate.

But if the worker paid the same premiums to any first class insurance company, he could, after five years, get unemployment insurance of $15 a week for 22 weeks. At the age of 65 he would also be el-ligible for a pension of $43 a month for the balance of his life, or until $12,953 had been repaid to him or to his estate.

in the capacity of national headquarters for this nation-wide vote.
Your local vote will first be recorded here in Bethel, then the ballot sent on to New York for national tabulation.

Our Votes are Important

Our local, county and state returns in this straw-vote will be of particular interest to voters everywhere, just as returns from other states will be of interest to the voters here. It is only through combined efforts of hundreds of weekly newspapers that such a record of sentiment in the small towns and rural America can be obtained.
It is therefore important that you decide now to cast your straw-vote in this balloting, so that your fellow voters for your favorite candidate in other states will know what may be expected from Maine.

Of first interest, of course, will be the returns shown in our choices right here in Oxford County. Decide now to cast your vote. Clip out the ballot, vote it, write in the name of the town and state, then mail or bring it to The Citizen.

Returns Each Week

Returns in the local voting will be published in these columns each week as the voting progresses. National returns will also be published as soon as they are available.
First releases of which should be forthcoming weekly within the next ten days or two weeks.

Let's get the ball rolling here in Bethel by clipping out the ballot below, voting it and sending it in to this office at once.

Which of the Presidential candi-

Bills of Every Individual. National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare.

The ordinary pattern of a revolution is simple and well established:
Comparatively radical or liberal elements within a country rise against a conservative or monarchist government. The French and American revolutions are examples of example. The current Spanish revolution violates the accepted rules. The party in power in Spain—"The Government"—consists of so-called liberals and radicals, whose beliefs range all the way from a mild semi-socialism to communism. The rebels are the reactionaries—the Spanish equivalent of Tories and monarchists.

At this writing, the revolution is still in full swing, and both sides are claiming great victories, both say they are certain of success.
Normally, such a civil war would not be of any great interest to America and Europe. But the chaotic European and Asiatic situations being what they are, the Spanish revolt is of tremendous international, as well as national significance.

Today, roughly speaking, all Europe is divided into two camps —fascists and anti-fascists. Germany is fascist. So is Italy. So is Austria. France is anti-fascist. The Spanish rebels, if they succeed, will establish a fascist government in Spain, and, following the German-Italian pattern, will rule through power of might, at the expense of all civil liberties. And if they fail it will still be evident that a substantial minority in Spain is opposed to all liberal tendencies, favors a militaristic dictatorship (The present Spanish government leaves much to be desired in the light of American and British ideas of freedom, but by comparison with Germany and Italy, it stands solidly for civil liberties.)

To continue, France is the last important mainstay of democracy in Europe. Even now, she is bordered on two sides by fascist states, which hate her and are hated by her in turn—Germany and Italy. If Spain goes Fascist and, as would doubtless follow, enters into an accord with Germany and Italy, France would be almost entirely surrounded by inimical, fascist powers, all longing to tear the Tricolor from its mast. In that case, nothing but a miracle could prevent war.

It is strongly rumored that both Italy and Germany have been encouraging the Spanish rebels, have provided them with arms and other supplies.
In the Far East, Japan wishes to dominate the Pacific—but first, she wishes to dominate Asia. All that prevents the fulfillment of that ambition is Russia, which is possibly the best-armed country in the world, and which has almost limitless resources of all kinds. The experts are certain that in case of trouble, Japan and Germany would enter into an accord, and the enemies of 1914 would become allies.
The whole situation is charged with dynamite—there is no question but that the outlook is more even than in 1913, before Sarag-One of the best of the foreign servers recently said that Europe has been drifting toward war years—but now it is marching. It is no exaggeration. And the "Spanish match" could explode a whole powder keg.

From the commercial standpoint the effects of the Spanish uprise will naturally be unfortunate, no ever side wins. When a country's resources must be given over to revolution, it has no money for cotton, machinery, or the other goods Spain usually buys in a quantity from the United States.
Furthermore, Business Week points out that "effects of Spanish

It is no secret that the Leland candidacy will hurt President Roosevelt more than it will Governor Landon. First poll of subject indicates that Lemke take about eight votes from President for every two he takes from the Republican nominee.

Also the first authoritative on the present standing of candidates (the Institute of Pu-Opinion poll) points to an exceedingly close election. Governor Le-don was slightly ahead in elect-votes, President Roosevelt slightly ahead in the popular vote. As great many states were in the ceasingly doubtful class.

Key states are apt to be New York and Pennsylvania. The Democratic ticket has been strengthened in former by the decision of Govern-Lehman to run again. And in the latter, the state administration democratic—the first in decades. Both parties will pour plenty money and oratory into these important territories, and it is a certainty that the candidate carries them will be the next President.

After some excitement the Se-had at last managed to catch train. Mrs. Smith gave a shriek
"Oh, Harry," she said, "I to turn off the electric iron."
"Don't worry, darling," he piled. "Nothing will burn. I to turn off the shower bath."—

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—The future of the still youthful and comely "Widder" Marcia Howe, recently released by death from her idling, selfish husband, is a conversational bit-bit among the housewives of the little hamlet of Wilton. Single bachelors and widowers also are interested.

CHAPTER II—Marcia, despite her unfortunate matrimonial experience, finds pleasure in her daily life, but is lonely at times, and has invited her late husband's niece, Sylvia Hayden, whom she has never seen, to visit her. The girl arrives and Marcia takes to her at once, while Sylvia, expecting to see a somewhat elderly aunt, finds Marcia more like a sister.

CHAPTER III

THE village store, grandiloquently styled by a red sign the Wilton emporium, was thronged with the usual noon-time crowd.

It was a still, gray day, murky with fog, and the odors of wet oil-skins, steaming rubber coats, damp woollens blended with a mixture of tar, coffee and tobacco smoke, made its interior thick and stuffy. Long ago the airtight stove had consumed such remnants of oxygen as the room contained. The windows reeked with moisture; the floor was gritty with sand.

These discomforts, however, failed to be of consequence to the knot of men who, rain or shine, congregated there at meal time. They were accustomed to them. Indeed, a drizzle, far from keeping the habitués away, rendered the meeting place unusually popular.

Shuffling over to the counter where his friends were huddled, Zenas Henry unobtrusively joined them.

"Yes, alee, there'll be somethin' doin' in Wilton now," Enoch Morton, the fish-man, was saying. "That sand bar's goin' to be the center of the town, if I don't miss my guess. There'll be more'n Charlie Eldridge fishin' in the channel."

A laugh greeted the prediction. "Who's seen her?" Captain Benjamin Todd inquired.

"I have," came the piping voice of Lemuel Gill. "Me and Becca rowed over from Belleport Saturday. The girl's Jason's niece all right, same's folks say, though she looks no more like him than chalk like cheese. A prettier little critter 'twould be hard to find. I'm almighty glad she's come, too, for it's goin' to be grand for Marcia, who must be lonely enough out there with only the settler for company."

"It's her own fault. She could have other companions was she so minded," declared Captain Phineas Taylor, significantly.

"Oh, we all know that, Phineas," agreed the grizzle Lemuel Gill. "There's plenty of folks hankerin' to be comrades to Marcia. The only trouble is she doesn't want 'em."

"With this girl at her elbow, she'll want 'em even less, I reckon," Amos Holmes interposed.

"Mebbe. Still, I s'gger that ain't a gale to discourage her admirers none. Why, within the week Sylvia's been here, I happen to know Marcia's had four buckets of clams, a catch of scounders, an' a couple of cuts of swordfish presented to her," Ephraim Wise, the mail carrier, announced.

"That stray blue fish of Charlie Eldridge's must 'a' availed the collection some. See," put in Lemuel.

"That ain't all the gifts The Widder's had, neither," volunteered Miss Nickerson, the postmaster, who now joined the group. "More'n one lobster's been snocked to Marcia after dusk."

"I don't so much mind folks makin' Marcia friendly donations," Capt. Jonas Baker declared with guilty haste. "In my opinion, it's right an' proper they should. But when it comes to Eleazer Crocker, who's head of the fire department an' undertaker as well, goin' over there for the entire evenin' with the keys to the engine house in his pocket, I think the town oughter take some action 'bout it. S'pose there was to be a fire an' him hemmed in by the tide 'tother side the channel? The whole village might burn to the ground 'fore ever he could be fetched home."

"Well, anyhow, I'm glad this niece of Marcia's come," broke in

"She's a Pleasant Little Critter."

Lemuel Gill. "She's a pleasant little critter an' will kinder stir things up."

"Oh, there's no danger but she'll do that all right, Lemmy," Zenas Henry drawled. "You can generally depend on a pretty girl to raise a rumpus. Give her a month in town an' she'll most likely have all the male population cuttin' one another's throats."

Fortunately both Marcia and Sylvia were at the moment too far out of earshot for this menacing prediction to reach them. Cut off by curtains of fog and a tide that foamed through the channel, they were standing in the Homestead kitchen.

It was a room boasting space enough for an old-fashioned brick oven; an oil stove; two sand-scrubbed tables, snow white and smooth as satin; a high-backed rocker cushioned in red calico; braided rugs and shelves for plants. A regal kitchen truly—one that bespoke both comfort and hospitality.

It was Sylvia, however, who, in a smock of flowered chintz, lent the room its supreme touch of color. She looked as if all the blossoms in all the world had suddenly burst into bloom and twined themselves about her slender body.

With her coming, a new world had opened to Marcia. To see Sylvia jauntily sweep aside old conventions; to behold the different emphasis she put upon familiar problems; to witness her audacious belittling of issues her elders had been wont to grapple with was an experience that continually shocked, stimulated, challenged and amused.

For, youthful though Sylvia was, she had personality, character, struts of wisdom far in advance of her years. A very intriguing companion, Marcia admitted, one of whose many-sidedness she would not soon tire.

"Now what shall our menu be, Marcia, dear?" she was asking. "Remember, according to our compact, it is my turn to get the dinner."

"Anything but fish!" Marcia answered with a groan. "I'm so tired of salt-water products it seems as if never again could I touch another."

"But, my dear, if you will have a stag line of nautical admirers, what can you expect? You must pay the penalty. Besides, I think you're ungrateful," Sylvia pouted. "I love clams and other sea foods."

"You've not had so many of them in your lifetime as I have. Besides, I suspect you are not telling the truth. Come, confess. Aren't you a wee bit fed up on clams? Clam chowder Monday night, steamed clams Tuesday noon; clam fritters Tuesday night. And then that blue fish. Why, it was big as a shark!

I used to think it would be romantic to be a 'Lorelei and live deep down beneath the waves; but this avalanche of fish—!" Despairingly she shrugged her shoulders.

Sylvia laughed.

"I don't feel at all like that. I've had a feast of fish and enjoyed it. But if I were to express a preference it would be for the hard-shelled suitors. Do select one of those for a husband, Marcia," begged she, whimsically.

"Sylvia! You absurd child!"

"Just consider the clam character for a moment—so sly, so close-mouthed; never stirring up trouble or wanting to be out nights. In my opinion, he would be an ideal helpmate. Marcia, do marry one of the clams!"

"Sylvia, you are ridiculous!" Marcia protested. "You forget I am your aunt."

"My mistake. I did forget it, I'll confess; and what's more I probably always shall. To me you are just a girl I'd be head-over-heels in love with if I were a man. I don't blame all the clams, lobsters, and flounders for flocking over here to make love to you."

"Stop talking nonsense."

"But it isn't nonsense. It's the truth. You certainly are not deluding yourself into thinking these men come gallivanting out here over the flats with the mere philanthropic purpose of seeing you don't starve to death, do you?" Sylvia demanded.

"Perhaps they come to see you?" hedged Marcia feebly.

"Me! Now Marcia, pray do not resort to deceit and attempt to poke this legion of mermen off on me. As a relative, I insist on having a truthful, respectable aunt. Consider my youth. Isn't it your Christian duty to set me a good example? Whether you wed any of these nautical worshippers or not is your own affair. But at least honesty compels you to acknowledge they're your property."

A shadow, fleet as the rift in a summer cloud, passed over Marcia's face, but transient as it was Sylvia, sensitively attuned and alert to changes of mood in others, noticed it.

"What a little beast I am, Marcia," she cried, throwing her arm impulsively about the other woman. "Forgive my thoughtlessness. I wouldn't have hurt you for the world. You know I never saw Uncle Jason. He left home when I was a child and is no reality to me. Even mother remembered him only as he was when a boy. Mother felt sorry, hurt, that Uncle Jason should have left home as he did, and never come back to see her. He was an impulsive, hot-headed boy and she said he resented her watchfulness and authority. But even though he ran away in a moment of anger, one would think years of absence would have smoothed away his resentment."

"Men are selfish—unfeeling. They forget," replied Marcia, bitterly. "You give your life to them and they toss aside your love and devotion as if it were so much rubbish."

The outburst, sharp with pain, burst from her involuntarily, awing Sylvia into silence.

What did she know of Jason, that dim heritage of her childhood? Of Marcia? Of their life together, she suddenly asked herself.

To cover the awkwardness of the moment, she bent to caress Prince Hal who had risen and stood, alert and listening beside her.

Only an instant passed before Marcia spoke again—this time with visible effort to recapture her customary manner.

"Suppose we have lobster Newburg this noon," suggested she. "I'll get the chafin-dish. What's the matter, Hal, old man? You look worried. Don't tell me you hear more fish swimming our way."

The nose of the settler quivered and, going to the window, he growled.

"He does hear something," asserted Sylvia. "What do you suppose it is?"

"Gulls, most likely. They circle above the house in clouds," was Marcia's careless answer. "The Prince regards them as his natural enemies. Apparently he resents their chatter."

Again the dog growled. Almost immediately a hand fumbled with the latch, and as the door swung open a man staggered blindly into the room.

He was hairless, wet to the skin, and shivering with cold, and before Marcia could reach his side, he lurched forward and fell at her feet.

"Quick, Sylvia, close the door and heat some broth. The poor fellow is exhausted. He's chilled to the bone."

"Who is he?"

"No one I know—a stranger. Bring that pillow and help me to slip it under his head. We'll let him rest where he is a moment."

Her fingers moved to the bronzed wrist.

"He's all right," she whispered. "Just cold and worn out. He'll be himself presently."

She swept the matted hair, lightly sprinkled with gray, from the man's forehead and wiped his face.

An interesting face it was—intelligent and high-bred, with well-cut features and a firm, determined chin.

A sweater of blue wool, a blue serge suit, socks of tan and sport shoes to match them clung to the tall, slender figure, and on the hand lying across it sparkled a diamond sunk in a band of wrought gold.

It was not the hand of a fisherman, tanned though it was; nor yet that of a sailor. There could be no doubt about that. Rather, it belonged to a scholar, a writer, a painter, or possibly to a physician for it was strong as well as beautifully formed.

Sylvia bent to adjust the pillow, and her eyes and Marcia's met.

Who was this man?

Whence came he?

What disaster had laid him here helpless before them?

As if their questions penetrated his consciousness, the stranger slowly opened his eyes.

"Sorry to come here like this," he murmured. "The fog was so thick, I lost my bearings and my power-boat ran aground. I've been trying hours to get her off. She's hard and fast on your sand-bar."

He struggled to rise and Marcia, kneeling beside him, helped him into an upright position where he sat, leaning against her shoulder.

"I seem to have brought in about half the sea with me," he apologized, looking about in vague, half-dazed fashion.

"No matter. We've used to salt water here," she answered. "How do you feel? You're not hurt?"

"Only a little. Nothing much. I've done something queer to my wrist. I was trying to push the boat off, and something suddenly gave way."

Turning his head aside, he bit his lip as if in pain.

"We'll telephone Doctor Stetson. Meanwhile, you mustn't remain in these wet clothes. There is no surer way of catching cold. Do you think you could get upstairs if Sylvia and I guided you?"

"I guess so—if it isn't far. I'm awfully dizzy. I don't know why. I suppose, though, I must shed those wet togs."

"You certainly must. Come, Sylvia, lend a hand! We'll help him up."

"Oh, I'm not in such a bad way as all that. I can get up alone," he protested. "Only please wait just another minute. The whole place has suddenly begun to pitch again like a ship in midocean. Perhaps I may be faint. I haven't eaten anything for a day or two."

"Why didn't you tell me? The scup, quick, Sylvia. I only wish I had some brandy. Well, at least this is hot, and will warm you up. I'll fend you. Hand me the cup and spoon, Sylvia."

"But I feel like a baby," fretted the stranger.

"No matter. We must get something hot inside you right away. Don't fuss about how it's done," said the practical-minded Marcia. "There! You look better already! Later you shall have a real, honest-to-goodness meal. Run and call Doctor Stetson, Sylvia, and open the bed in the room opposite mine. You might light the heater there, too."

As the girl sped away, Marcia turned toward her visitor.

"Suppose we try to make the rocking chair now. Shall we? But what worries me is your wet clothing. I'm afraid you'll take your death of cold. Let me peel off your shoes and socks. I can do that. And I believe I could get you out of your water-soaked sweater if I were to cut the sleeves. May I try? We needn't mind wrecking it, for I have another I can give you."

The man did not answer.

Instead, he sat tense and unsmiling, his penetrating brown eyes fixed on Marcia's face. Apparently the scrutiny crystallized in some swift resolution, for after his glance travel about room to convince himself that one was within hearing, he le forward.

"There is something else rather you did for me first, whispered, dropping his voice it became almost inaudible. 'package here I wish you'd charge of. It's inside my But for this infernal wrist, I reach it.'"

"I'll get it."

"I'd rather you didn't talk it," continued he, hurriedly, put it in a safe place. 'W please?'"

"Certainly."

Puzzled, but unquestioning, Marcia thrust her hand beneath sodden clothing and drew for small, flat box, wrapped in a draggled handkerchief.

"If you'll look out for it, tremendously obliged."

"Of course I will," smiled Marcia. "Look! Here is my pet box. I place. This brick in the beam loose and under it is plenty space for this small box. I'm it in there. Just hold it a until I pry the brick up. The are! Now give it to me."

She reached hurriedly for package, but as their hands the moist, clinging handker became entangled in their and slipping from its cover a leather jewel-case dropped to floor.

Out of it rolled a flashing face and a confusion of sa gems.

Marcia stifled an involuntary Nevertheless, she neither up nor delayed.

"Sorry to be so clumsy," she tured, as she swiftly scooped the jewels.

It was well she had made for no sooner was the clasp e box snapped and the treasure cealed beneath the floor tha via returned, and a moment came both Doctor Jared S and Elisha Winslow.

"Mornin', Marcia," nodded the tor. "Liah happened to be office when your niece call an' hearin' you had a man he thought mebbe he might use. What 'pears to be the air?"

"I've done something to my wrist."

"It—m—m!" With skilled he pushed back the dripping "Mr.—" for the fraction of ond, Marcia hesitated; then dined in an even tone, "Mr. ton grounded his boat and b swim ashore."

SONGO POND

What was thought to be a sad event Sunday turned out to send everyone home happy on a bus from Berlin. A little boy, 4 years old, was lost about 3 p. m. His father and many others started a search for him. Mr. Grover and a few Legion men came in from Bethel to aid in the search. George Parsons, hearing a cry just at dusk, followed the sound and located the boy quite a distance across the main road and up a rocky hill that led into thick mountain growth. The little fellow was frightened but otherwise all right.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY
Sunday School at 10 o'clock.
Services Sunday morning at 10:45.
"Soul" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, August 16.

The Golden Text is: "Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits: Who forgiveth all thine iniquities; who healeth all thy diseases" (Psalm 103: 2, 3).

Among the citations from the Bible is the following: "My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the Lord: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God. For the Lord God is a sun and shield: the Lord will give grace and glory: no good thing will he withhold from them that walk uprightly." (Psalm 84: 2, 11).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science Textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The so-called laws of mortal belief are destroyed by the understanding that Soul is immortal, and that mortal mind cannot legislate the times, periods, and types of disease, with which mortals die. God is the lawmaker, but He is not the author of barbarous codes. In infinite Life and Love there is no sickness, sin, nor death, and the Scriptures declare that we live, move and have our being in the infinite God" (page 351: 12-19).

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Miss Virginia Chapman was given a birthday surprise at her home Wednesday afternoon by her mother, Mrs. Philip Chapman. The guests were Kathleen Wight, Katherine Loomis, Barbara Lyon, Elaine Warren, Dorothy Thurston, Barbara Hall, Florence Deegan, Joyce Chapman, Eva Deegan, Muriel Hall, Marion Chapman, Mrs. Elsie Davis and Mrs. Erma Young. A large variety of games including croquet and beano were enjoyed on the spacious lawn, after which delicious refreshments of ice cream, birthday cake, and fancy crackers were served. The guest of honor received many nice gifts and wishes for many more such pleasant birthdays.

FRED P. CHANDLER

After five years of failing health, following a shock, Fred Perry Chandler died July 31 at his home in Auburn.

He was born on Chandler Hill, Bethel, Jan. 18, 1872, the son of Perry and Mary Goss Chandler. After attending Gould Academy, he started as baggage-master under his uncle, Mark Chandler, in Bethel and for 47 years was in the employ of the Grand Trunk. He became station agent at Bryant Pond, was at South Paris 14 years, and for 25 years was agent at Auburn and Lewiston. He was a member of the Paris Lodge of Masons and the Shrine at Lewiston.

Mr. Chandler married Miss Emma F. Chandler of Bethel in 1894, who survives him. He also leaves two daughters, Mrs. Hilda Dunham of West Auburn and Mrs. Marjorie Berry of North Auburn; a granddaughter, Marjorie Dunham; a sister, Mrs. Cora Abbott of Falls Church, Va.; and several cousins.

LESLIE E. MCINTIRE

Leslie E. McIntire passed away suddenly Wednesday morning at his home at East Waterford.

He was born at East Waterford, Sept. 5, 1858, the son of Justin E. and Amanda Johnson McIntire. On Feb. 1, 1880, he married Miss Edith R. Swain of North Waterford, who died several years ago.

Mr. McIntire was widely known as one of the leading farmers of the State. He was prominent in Grange work, in many co-operative movements, and the Farm Bureau. He was president of the Oxford County Agricultural Society and a director of the New England Milk Producers Association. He had been a member of the legislature and had served on several commissions appointed by the Governor. He was an officer in the national association of Holstein-Friesian breeders and possessed one of the largest herds of fine cattle of that breed in Maine.

He is survived by a son, Clayton S. McIntire, who was associated with him; a daughter, Mrs. Lula Pinkham of North Waterford, and several grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at the home Saturday at 2 p. m.

How to Telephone the King

If you want to "phone the king, you have to give the operator at Buckingham palace a code word known only to his majesty's closest friends. This word is changed every week. Otherwise the king would be annoyed almost every moment of the day by the activities of a new and irritating kind of busybody — the phonomaniac. Phonomania is an irresistible desire to ring up individuals or firms, and hoax them with false information and messages, says Pearson's Weekly. So widespread has the annoyance become that the post of "phone detectives," who can track down calls swiftly and accurately. They are working in close cooperation with the police.

BORN

In West Bethel, Aug. 9, to the wife of Paul Head, a son.

DIED

In Auburn, July 31, Fred Perry Chandler, native of Bethel, aged 64 years.

In North Waterford, Aug. 7, Mrs. Katherine Saunders.

In Newry, Aug. 9, J. Howell Crosby, aged 82 years.

In East Waterford, Aug. 12, Leslie McIntire, aged 77 years.

ARLINGTON FOLKS AT BETHEL, MAINE, FOR CROSBY FUNERAL

J. Howell Crosby Prominent Here in Public Affairs. Was Selectman, Representative and State Senator. Member of Old Arlington Family.

Arlington people journeyed to Bethel, Maine, Tuesday, to attend the last rites for John Howell Crosby, who was a member of one of Arlington's oldest families and a powerful figure in public affairs for many years. Mr. Crosby retired from active life some few years ago and moved to his farm in Bethel, where he died on Sunday, after a long illness in his sixty-ninth year. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. H. T. Wallace, pastor of the Congregational Church of Bethel, and interment was in beautiful Bethel Cemetery. The bearers were his three sons-in-law, a nephew, John S. Crosby of Arlington, a grandson, David Howard of Kitchener, Ontario, and James W. Reynolds of Bethel.

Although he had always been considered a native of Arlington, Mr. Crosby was born in Belmont just before his father, John Spencer Crosby, bought the present Crosby estate on Mystic Street and moved his family to this town in 1887. His mother's name was Sarah Prescott (Blake) Crosby.

He was a graduate of Arlington High School and on December 9, 1891, he was married to Miss Daisy A. Conant of Arlington. He was associated with his father and brother, Nelson B. Crosby, in the family business of market gardening, and very early embarked on a political career, which carried him high in Republican circles.

He represented this district in the General Court from 1899 to 1902, and was state senator in 1903 and 1910. Like his father before him, he was an Arlington Selectman for three one-year terms, from 1907 through 1909. His father had been a selectman in 1872. During the war Howell Crosby was food administrator for Middlesex County.

Mr. Crosby was a man of many interests and hobbies. Besides his business and politics, he was absorbed in many other things. He was a member of the First Baptist Church of Arlington and for years taught the same Sunday School class, following its members from childhood to maturity. He also served as superintendent of the Sunday School for some time. He numbered a great many art treasures among his possessions and he had an extensive library. It is also recalled that he was one of the first owners of a phonograph and took a great deal of interest in the machine, his collection of fine records being very complete. At his funeral three of his favorite records were reproduced. Flags on all Arlington public buildings were at half mast.

Besides his wife and his brother, Representative Nelson B. Crosby, he leaves four daughters, Mrs. Julian C. Howard of Kitchener, Ontario, Mrs. Earl S. Williamson of Bethel, Maine, Miss Ruth Crosby of Orono, Maine, and Mrs. Harold G. Bennett of Arlington. There are also seven grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. O. G. King and daughter Elizabeth of South Paris visited Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Butts and Arthur Cutler and family at Songo Pond Sunday. Miss Elizabeth King underwent a successful operation for appendicitis at Lewiston Tuesday morning.

John Harris and sister, Miss Hattie M. Harris of Chelsea, Mass., who have been stopping for several weeks with Mrs. J. S. Hutchins at their old home on Broad Street, returned home Friday.

to have signs to guide people around and call their attention to "what is what" in the various localities. Before the advent of reading, signs were used practically altogether.
Not many of them depend upon the printed word, but were symbols.
Your grandfather supped at the White Horse Tavern and the Signat the sign of the Indian and each business as well as each family had its crest or coat of arms. With the rapid advance of reading this idea of al-

"MACK, THE SIGNIST"

Located At 115 Lisbon St., Lewiston, Features Neon Signs, Cards, Road Signs—Office And Truck Lettering—Leading Authority On Signs In This Section Of The Country.

"Mack, the Signist" has been on account of his construction. The Neon light is very penetrating and is used in the light-houses of the English Channel to penetrate the dense fog and is the only light that will do this.

"Mack, the Signist" has a modern service in signs for every purpose, either for permanent or temporary use, all kinds of outdoor advertising signs and road signs, bulletins, walls and were used practically altogether.

He has made a very extensive study of modern business practices and thus is in a position to offer customers not only a service that they have in mind but has a creative mind and is able to make suggestions that have individuality and distinction about them.

Another feature of the business is the rapid service that is offered. He has an ample force for quick production so that there is no delay. Often work is turned out the same day as ordered.

In this review we are glad to compliment "Mack, the Signist" upon the part he is playing in the rapid development of the country and to refer this very superior service to all of our readers.

Clifford L. Swan Co., Inc.

Located At 206 Forest Ave., Portland, Are Some Of The Ablest Auctioneers Of This Section And Are Called All Over This Part Of The State In Sales Of Furniture And Merchandise, Farms, Live Stock, Real Estate And Chattels—Get Good Prices—Tel. 4-2107.

The thing most essential in preparation for a public sale is the auctioneer. Of course you may have called upon to offer the public at auction. There may even be a great demand for the particular live stock that you wish to sell. But if you do not get a first class auctioneer your sale will be a failure.

That is why we refer you to Clifford L. Swan Co., Inc. If this name appears on your sale bill as the official dignitary of the occasion, there will be no question about the success of your undertaking. By disposition and temperament they are especially qualified for the profession and wide experience and extensive acquaintance renders them among the foremost auctioneers in this part of the state.

They are well versed not only in the values of all manner of real estate, but have a very definite knowledge that is the result of years of study and a marvelous memory of the property that comes within the scope of the auctioneer of the period. Versatile and ready of language of description, they are able to enthrall the audience, stir the bidders, and get the best results.

They have, by reasonableness of their charges, the general satisfaction of the work, the genial and wholehearted personality, merited the reputation acquired as among the foremost auctioneers in this section and it is a pleasure for us in this review to direct your special attention to the commendable and satisfactory work of Clifford L. Swan Co., Inc. who are among the best and most valuable citizens of the community, aiding in the progress and prosperity.

Maine Employment Office

Located At 633 Congress St., Portland, Offer The Public A Most Accommodating Service Of Reliable Male And Female Help Of Character And Can Always Bring The Right Employer And Employee Together—If You Need Any Help Or Want A Position, Here Is The Place To Call—They Specialize In Both Male And Female Clerical And Domestic Help—Tel. 3-1631.

The Maine Employment Office at Portland has built up a very large business because it is conducted by people of experience and who are careful and look up all references.

They have had wide experience in finding suitable help and jobs for people. They can at a glance size people up and in a few minutes conversation tell whether they are mere novices at the position they seek or really know the business. Being familiar with the help problems they are able to cross examine all applicants who apply and in the event they do not think they understand the kind of work for which they are applying transfer them to something to which they are suited and this enables them not only to furnish help, but one from the Maine Employment Office always is able to fill the position.

They always demand reference from anyone applying so that the employers may know something of the past service of the new employee. This enables them to furnish help that is reliable and satisfactory.

They make a specialty of furnishing reliable male and female help both domestic and clerical. They can get office help, chauffeurs, butlers, cooks, gardeners, day help, nurses and couples.

People desiring good positions should go in and register at this agency as they have a clientele that is worth while and places people in some of the best positions that are to be had in this territory. On account of their experience and the methods they use they have built a reputation that keeps their telephone busy answering the demands for help.

We are pleased to detail the advantages of the services of The Maine Employment Office of Portland and to call to the attention of the people the benefit to be derived from depending upon their excellent judgement.

Carl E. and Inga S. Ahlquist

Located At 156 Free St., Portland, Are Masseurs Who Offer A Very Comprehensive And Beneficial Service In Massage—Have Modern Equipment And Use Latest Methods—Phone 3-9806.

Modern civilization, with its mechanical strain of invention and its rapid mechanical industrial development, has brought about a debilitated condition of the body. With the increasing use of machinery instead of manual power, the healthy body is being weakened and strength is being lost. The situation is not as bad as it might seem for the services of the Ahlquist masseurs are helping many to keep in health. Carl E. and Inga S. Ahlquist, located at 156 Free St. in Portland, are helping to keep the body healthy. They are capable, experienced, efficient, thoroughly familiar with the art and science of the massage, trained and skilful in the application.

Massage is a great aid to health as it exercises unused muscles and prevents the blood from becoming sluggish. There is no one whether sick or well who would not feel considerably better if they had an occasional massage treatment. They are prepared to give massage treatments which will keep you in a good healthy condition and make you take a keener enjoyment of life.

The taking of a massage treatment is very beneficial in this age of hurry and rush when neglect of proper exercise is often carried to the extreme. Man in the long ago was accustomed to hard labor but today many people lead indoor lives and muscles which should be exercised are allowed to atrophy. Massage corrects this and places one in the best of condition.

The health of the community is one of the most important aspects of social life. To people, such as Carl E. and Inga S. Ahlquist who are helping to preserve and strengthen it, we owe the highest praise. We recommend their services—you will find it worth trying.

Harper Method Shop

Located At 655 Congress St., Portland, Features The Famous Harper Method Which Has Been Established For 50 Years Specializing In Scalp Treatments For Men And Women And A Complete Beauty Service—Feature Permanent Waving, Finger Waving, Marcelling, Facials And Scientific Shampooing—Phone 4-1036.

With the universal recognition of the value to society of modern beauty service and its great popularity come hundreds of systems of beauty culture, heralding their origin everywhere from Paris to the inner sanctums of the most exclusive of the Orient. This condition makes it difficult for some to choose which one to patronize. Those who have followed the history of beauty culture in the United States know that the reliable Harper method has grown to a national institution on account of the superiority of its processes and that its service is always to be relied upon as scientific, ably operated and offering the latest in style.

The founders of the Harper method established it upon the sure foundation of correct scientific principles and all processes have been thoroughly tested before being offered to the public which assures everyone of satisfaction. They stake their reputation upon their offering of any new treatment and therefore one can rely upon the service as being a success. In their laboratories and experimental establishments they are continually bringing out new treatments and new styles.

The Harper Method offers an excellent service in the various phases of beauty culture and Miss Coyne is very efficient in all lines and has customers from far and near.

In making this review of the social and business life of the section we are glad to compliment them on their modern methods, extensive patronage and reasonable prices and refer this shop to all of our readers when in need of scientific and modern hair dressing and allied lines.

Pilgrims Rest

Located On W. Auburn Road, R. F. D. No. 4, Auburn, Is An Ideal Nursing Home For Invalids, Convalescents And Elderly People. Have Hot And Cold Water, Automatic Oil Heating, Automatic Refrigeration. Each Patient Is Given Private Room And Care Of Physician Of Their Own Choice. Has Been Established Nineteen Years.

Pilgrims Rest is more than a nursing institution but has many features from all over the state and foreign territory.

It is admirably located where there is plenty of sunshine and a country where there is never a chance to bother the sick, yet close enough to town so that the relatives and friends of patients can call often without great inconvenience. The heating, ventilating and sanitary arrangements are most modern and everything new in the line is added as soon as it is out and has been approved by the supervising medical authorities.

The environment is pleasant. The rooms are comfortable and tastefully and cheerfully decorated and all the comforts and conveniences that the patient will desire are supplied.

The Pilgrims Rest specializes in the care of convalescents and elderly people and in order to be able to give these patients the very best of attention have installed the best and most modern equipment. A nurse is in attendance at all times.

Nourishing and appetizing food, so necessary for rebuilding the health and strength of a sick person, is found here. It is attractively served, and its purity and wholesomeness is assured by the watchful care in its preparation.

It has a high rating among people and in professional circles and among hospital authorities it is rated as a first class institution. There is no question but that if one is sick and wants to recover rapidly, going to such an institution as this is no mistake.

It is with pleasure that we detail in this review the advantages of The Pilgrims Rest and we wish to recommend it to the people of this section.

Max Miller & Co.

Located On Mill St., Auburn, Are Modern Conservations And Pay The Highest Market Prices Of The Day For Rags, Scrap Iron And Junk—You Will Be Sure Of Getting Fair Treatment When You Deal With Them—Under The Personal Management Of Mr. Max Miller.

Max Miller & Co. conduct one of the institutions of this section that offers its patrons the best of service and is aiding in the conservation of waste materials.

They buy junk of all kinds. Look around your place and see whether you do not have some articles that you are not using and then call them over the phone. They will pay you the highest market price of the day. It is your duty to sell all the junk around the place as it puts to practical use waste materials that are needed in the economy of modern civilization.

The collection of junk aids in the lightening of labor and is helping to hasten the day when men will not have to go to the mine, mill and factory for so many hours a day to secure for the business the requisite amount of material to keep the wheels of industry on the move.

In making this review of our progress we are pleased to compliment Max Miller & Co. upon the excellent service and the success they are making and at the same time rendering an important service in the conservation of waste materials.

Potter's Cafe

Located At 658 Congress St., Portland, Is A Popular Place For People Over The Surrounding Territory To Stop For Lunch Or Meal When In Portland—Under Personal Management Of Mr. Clarence R. Potter—Phone 2-1082.

Potter's Cafe is indeed very fortunate in having at its head one who knows the cafeteria field and who is rapidly making it the leading cafeteria in this section.

This popular cafeteria is a center for the tourist, the local and the traveling public and has taken a prominent place in the social and business life of this section. Variety and novelty in menu is furnishing both the best of cooking and the rare dishes make this a pleasant place to stop. When you do not know what you want just think of this place and you will solve the problem.

Here they offer complete service and employ experienced help. The choicest of foods are secured and cooked according to the latest ideas. These are very appetizing.

In addition to providing always the better grade of food, the policy of the management includes serving it at the lowest possible price. The large amount of business which the concern enjoys enables it to carry out the "Large Sales, Low Prices" policy even with the greater cost which necessarily is incurred in the better grades of food which they use.

In this review we are glad to compliment the management upon the position occupied in the business and social life of the community and would ask everyone to call here occasionally and make the family happy by giving them an occasional meal away from home.
